

Life in a Pouch

Early life of Australia's Marsupials and Echidna

An informative presentation by Dr. Les Hall

Saturday 25th February

10 am - $15/person (includes morning tea)

Marsupials give birth to the smallest young of all mammals.

The weight of a newborn Grey Kangaroo is less than 1gm!

Development of the body and internal organs of a newborn marsupial young is only sufficient to allow crawling to the mother's pouch, attaching to a teat and to suckle milk. All subsequent life in a pouch ensures warmth, protection, transport and nourishment. The Echidna story is extraordinary. Come and find out more!
